What is a Coreborn?

Coreborn are mechs created by various powers around the world. Powered by a Core, the Coreborn are more nimble and sturdy than the average ground combat unit. They are considered the most advanced combat units ever created.

Coreborn Construction

1. Pick one Major Attribute and Specialization.
2. Pick one Minor Attribute and Specialization.
    a. A Coreborn may not have the Major attribute be the same as its Minor attribute.
    b. Example: Picking Offense as the Major Attribute and Ranged as the specialization. Then pick Defense as the Minor Attribute and Structure as the Specialization.
3. Determine Classification
    a. Use the "Classifications" charts
4. Pay Class Cost
5. Choose 1 Core
6. Choose 1 Ranged weapon
7. Choose 1 Melee weapon
8. Choose 1 Defense
9. Optional: Choose up to 2 Coreborn Upgrades
10. Optional: Choose 1 Weapon Upgrade

Corebreakers is a miniature agnostic game. No factions in the game have a cohesive way that their units look.

When creating any unit for this game, use whatever best allows for you to understand the rules of your unit. Any short-hand, excel sheets or other ways to convey the unit is valid so long as it is readable and understandable by the opponent.

The attributes chosen determine the classification of the Coreborn and its starting stats.

Refer to the "Classifications " section of this document.

Class I Coreborns are generally small and nimble

Class II Coreborns are medium and generally all-rounders with a focus on speed and melee

Class III Coreborns are larger all-rounders that usually focus on ranged weapons and more armor

Class IV Coreborns are the largest and usually have very little speed to speak of. But make up for it in weaponry, armor and intimidation

Class V Coreborns are special Coreborns that do not fit the mold of the other categories and are often artillery

Core Types

Standard Core
First developed by Russian engineers in 2225, the Standard Core balances cost, strength, and simplicity with proven battlefield durability. Trusted by militaries and Outriders alike, it's the most used Core in the world.
Price	Stats
30 Creds	No change in base stats

Experimental Core
Created by the U.S. in 2250 as a response to the Standard Core, the Experimental Core aimed to rival the power of the Original Cores. While the U.S. calls it a success, other nations remain skeptical. Its unstable performance leaves most pilots uneasy.
Price	Stats
50 Creds	Gain bonus on primary attribute Reduces maximum Breach capacity by 1 If the final attack (to kill the Coreborn via breach or damage) is a Crit, explode the Coreborn, dealing 5 undodgeable damage to all units within 6"

Light Core
Developed alongside the Experimental Core in 2250, the Light Core was the U.S.'s other major creation to compete with the Standard Core. It trades durability for enhanced power output and is considered by many to be a better success than the Experimental Core.
Price	Stats
40 Creds	Gain bonus on secondary attribute Reduces maximum Breach capacity by 1

Original Core
Forged by the U.S. and Mexico after a coastal assault by the Russian–Australian–Chinese alliance, the Original Cores were built for war without compromise. They are powerful, stable, and prohibitively expensive. Only the most elite Operators are trusted to wield them.
Price	Stats
70 Creds	Gain bonus on primary and secondary attribute +1 Guard

Hand Rungs
Price	Restrictions	Stats
10 Creds	No Restrictions	Friendly Infantry riding this Coreborn roll staying on with +1 Dice Tier. Even when the Coreborn Jumps.

Ladders
Price	Restrictions	Stats
10 Creds	No Restrictions	Any Infantry can climb this Coreborn as long as they have 3” of movement to do so when they reach the base of the Coreborn.

Tripod Configuration
Price	Restrictions	Stats
20 Creds	Class III and IV Coreborn	-2” of movement +1 Ranged Accuracy Cannot melee Cannot be combined with quad legged configuration

Auto Turret System
Price	Restrictions	Stats
25 Creds	No Restrictions	At the end of each activation, the turret fires at the closest enemy unit that the Coreborn can see. This is rolled as 1 x Tier 2 (Green) die for both vs INF and vs CB. If firing at an enemy rider on this Coreborn, roll 1 x Tier 3 (Yellow) die. These rolls cannot be modified in any way. Cannot be combined with Smoke Launcher This does not work if the Coreborn is in melee with another Coreborn

Melee Configuration
Price	Restrictions	Stats
30 Creds	Class II and III Coreborn	This unit may equip two melee weapons and combine them into a single melee profile. If equipping two melee weapons, it forgoes its ability to equip any ranged weapons. Use the lowest damage values (vs Infantry and vs Coreborn) and the highest Accuracy value between the two weapons. This profile gains all attributes from both weapons. You cannot buy more than one of the same weapon.

Reinforced Guard
Price	Restrictions	Stats
25 Creds	No Restrictions	Ignore the first, or second if the Coreborn has the armor primary attribute, breach stat deduction

Shield Wall
Price	Restrictions	Stats
15 Creds	Must have a Heavy or Light Shield	Any infantry within 3” are considered to be in encompassing cover.

Smoke Launcher
Price	Restrictions	Stats
15 Creds	No Restrictions	+Smoke Max Range 10” Cannot be combined with Auto Turret System

Biolock
Price	Restrictions	Stats
15 Creds	No Restrictions	Enemy infantry (including Expellers) cannot take control of this unit by entering it while it is unpiloted unless they successfully bypass its single Corelock. See mission 1: Coreborn Recovery for rules on Corelocks.

Thermal Sights
Price	Restrictions	Stats
10 Creds	No Restrictions	Ignore all smoke penalties when firing into or through smoke.
